

FUN FOR BABY WITH WINNIE THE POOH - BRANDI RILEY -

HTTP://WWW.MAMAKNOWSITALL.COM

Learn how Winnie the Pooh and Friends can make your time with baby more fun in this sponsored post!

It's amazing how quickly time seems to pass when you have a newborn. After nine long months of pregnancy, the part we've all been waiting for - the best part - goes by so fast! It's not fair! You would think it'd be the opposite, that long days with a baby mostly sleeping should drag along, but as parents reading this know, that's not the case at all. Between changing diapers, nursing, and welcoming visitors, there's always something to do!

Even if you rarely leave the house during your baby's first weeks, your baby needs new experiences every day to shape him or her into the person that they're going to be. From tummy time to reading books, engaging baby in different activities is not only great for their development, but a fantastic way to bond with them as well.

So how do you know which products are the best ones to purchase for these very important early days? Since this time with your new baby goes by so fast, it's not like we have forever to do months of research through trial and error. This is one of the reasons I tend to go with the brands that I have known and loved since I was a child.

Therefore I was thrilled to work with Disney for this post! Disney Baby's Winnie the Pooh Happy As Can Bee Infant to Toddler Rocker and Disney Baby Winnie The Pooh Happy As Can Bee Activity Gym (both from Bright Starts) have been the perfect addition to our new little boy's daily activities. Bright and colorful and featuring all of the sweet Winnie the Pooh characters, baby boy is already getting lots of enjoyment from them both at just one month old.

Since the Disney Baby's Winnie the Pooh Happy As Can Bee Infant to Toddler Rocker has both stationary and vibrating modes, we use it to help baby boy relax or to soothe him depending on his mood. As his eyesight improves, the toy bar has been keeping his attention, and it's fun to watch him observe the toys so intently! We usually put him in the rocker when he's in a chill mood, and it typically helps him to fall asleep.

The first time I put him on the Disney Baby Winnie The Pooh Happy As Can Bee Activity Gym, I couldn't believe how engaged he was right away! Even though he's teeny tiny, the music and the toys still captured his attention. I could see him moving his eyes, he bounced his legs, and even started trying to move his head. I'm looking forward to seeing how much fun he has with the activity gym as he gets older! For right now, it's perfect for tummy time, and putting him on his back for entertainment.

Both of these products are affordable (the rocker is $39.98 and the activity gym is $49.98 at Walmart) and they are must-haves for keeping baby engaged and entertained. Make the most of these fleeting early days by spending quality time playing with your little one!

This post was created in partnership with Disney Baby and WomensForum.com.